

Original:

Suggested Changes:

A) “Consent” isn’t the correct term in this context. “Approval” may be a better term as the parent does not, in fact, “consent” to the creation of an account, rather he/she must “approve” it as the owner and manager of the account.

B) The abundance of infinitive verbs in this sentence makes it a bit awkward. This sentence should be rephrased to restore its flow.

C) There is no need for a colon after “verification code” as there is already adequate demarcation between the text and the field.

D) In the vertical navigation on the left side, “Family” is displayed rather than “Family Sharing,” which is not consistent with the product name as it appears elsewhere.

E) Additionally, in the vertical navigation on the left side, “TV Channels” is incorrect and should be “Apple TV” as that is the most common name by which this product is known.

F) The usage of the word “household” gives the wrong impression as to the members allowed to participate in a family sharing plan; for example, a college student who lives at a dorm or even a close family friend who doesn’t live under the same roof as the members of the main “household” could be part of a family.

G) The ellipses that appear after “Add Family Member” and “Turn Off Family Sharing” are distracting, unnecessary and inelegant.

My Version:

